PC Help

Suffering from Pop-Ups?

Do you find that when you go online that you get little pop-up boxes telling you that your life would be better if you take some pills or you pc is infected with loads of very nasty viruses? If so; then you have been infected by malicious ware. This insidious software gets on to your PC usually via the web. It can also hijack your home page, and cause your computer to behave erratically.

What can you do to minimise the chances of catching this type of malicious ware. The most important thing is not to go to websites that could harbour these villains or download software from non-legitimate sites.

If you allow children or teenagers to use your computer, then you are more at risk of catching something nasty. They have no fear, and as a result they can download software that could contain harmful software. Warn young people about the dangers of downloading software from the web.

There are a couple of good programs that you can use to remove some of the malicious ware from your computer and they are free. There are: SpyBot Search and Destroy and Ad-Aware. Both of these companies have a free trial version that will find and remove most malicious ware from your computer.

Remember always back up your data on a regular basis, keep that copy safe. If in doubt call a competent computer engineer.
